although we probably need it. I am very prone to riding horses in either direction. I do ... I would kind of wish that when Senator Cavanaugh denotes me as a big spender, which I'd love to be, that he would point out maybe one issue, or that I don't like to raise taxes. I wish he'd point out an issue because I have alienated just about everybody in all of my levels of government by insisting on taxing and by denying spending as near as I can interpret my record. I'd like a specific issue on that.

I would say this in response to Senator Syas, who I admire and respect, I know he's very sincere, I talked to Professor Milton Friedman who is much more of an economist than I will ever be. His recommendation, his answer to the kind of resolution that Senator Syas would like to see, was that we should possibly present a resolution to Congress saying "You will spend not more than 25 percent of the gross national product", which is the level we're at today. This, unfortunately, did not speak to the issue that 106 speaks to because there is no preclusion there from them borrowing. They could continue to do just as they're doing now. The debt would continue to extend itself.

I'd like a long list from Senator Cavanaugh of the taxes that I have refused to support and of the large expenditures that I have advocated. I'd like to make him put a similar one along side with his signature at the bottom.

PRESIDENT: Senator Frank Lewis.

SENATOR F. LEWIS: Well, Mr. Chairman, I'm not going to prolong this. I'm just going to recall for your attention an attempt by an individual much like Senator Murphy earlier in history when he attempted to wash his hands and the blood was still there. It's still there, Murphy.

PRESIDENT: I'm glad some of these things weren't said yesterday. Senator Burbach, would you want to close debate on this matter.

SENATOR BURBACH: Mr. President, members of the Legislature. I'm glad we had this fine, frank and free discussion about this resolution. I think it brings out the fact that we're asking the federal government to continue a program that they started, that they indicated to us that there would be at least quite some time of this being in operation. We could expect and anticipate it until some other program would come along and phase this out automatically, and at one time would create more problems than this Legislature has seen for a long time, or the State of Nebraska has seen. We're relying so heavily on these monies for our state aid to education or many other programs. So, with the discussion we've had, I move for the adoption of LR 117.

PRESIDENT: The question is the adoption of the resolution. Record your vote. Have all of you voted? Record.
